
Introduction – Joshua Lozoff (Last name rhymes with “goes off”)

It is my pleasure to introduce our very special guest. He has been performing and speaking around the world for over fifteen years.

Recently, he was one of only two magicians invited to perform at the World’s Fair in Japan. And for three years in a row, his one-man show broke box office records by selling out every performance.

If he looks familiar to you, it might be from his years as an actor on shows like Cheers, and movies such as Clueless. We’re thrilled to have him with us tonight.

Please welcome with a BIG round of applause, Joshua Lozoff!

Tips for a Great Introduction:

A proper introduction is crucial to a successful performance.

You or someone from your organization needs to introduce the comedian or speaker. If you don’t feel up for the task, feel free to delegate this responsibility. Just make sure the person you select follows these important rules:

- Read over the introduction beforehand and practice reciting it aloud. Ask the performer about the correct pronunciation of their name.
- If you have a buffet or bar, the introduction is not the time to announce last call for food and drinks. Make that announcement at least 5–10 minutes before showtime.
- When you approach the microphone, give everyone a few minutes to settle down. Wait as long as needed for everyone to be seated and to quiet down.
- Be energetic! The introduction builds excitement and sets the tone for the entire performance.
